Given the growth of the nursing profession in many countries, the size of the nursing graduate student population in Canadian nursing programs, and the competition for entry to nursing programs, it is important that the perceptions and expectations of nursing applicants are assessed. The purpose of this article was to explore the experiences of Canadian nursing applicants and the criteria they use in choosing nursing as a career. The data were gathered using a survey containing both open-ended and closed-ended questions. The first round of questioning included questions about general demographics, previous experience in the healthcare field, current experiences in the b7e8fdf5c8
